Ot this aggregate, it will be seen, the State taxes form but a little more than one-lourth, the other three-fourths being made up of county or local taxes. Now of these the Democratic counties assess one-fourth more than the Republican. The two assess nearly $9,000,000. Consequently the Democratic counties assess $5,000,000, the Republican $4,000,000, the difference, $1,000,000, being one-tourth of the Republican assessment. The Democratic local taxes of the State exceed thos of the Republicans $1,000.000 per year. This is more than the whole revenue that would be obtained from a State tax of 10 cents on $100 at the present valuation, and a little more than a tax of 15 cents would yield on the old valuation. In other words, the Democratic counties of Indiana tax their citizens more than the Republican counties do by enough to pay the whole State tax at 10 cents on the present valuation, and more than enough to pay it at 15 cents on the old valuation. This fact is worth thinking about in an election which is to trust one or the other of the parties with the taxes and business of the State for the next two years. Now, by the way of offsetting this enormous excess of Democratic local taxation, the Democratic Legislature of 1871 thought The excitement in regard to the Rob- to do a big thing for the party by cut- case, gave a decision yesterday, to the inson divorce scandal still continues un- ting down the State tax.
